THIS CITY AND YUMA JOINED BY PHONE

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

Prescott and Yuma were linked together yesterday by the Consolidated Telephone and Telegraph company, and for the first time in their history a conversation was carried on over the wires direct, and the agreeable fact of bringing both into closer relation than ever before goes into history. This very important event was participated in by F. L. Delvin, manager of the company, in this city, and F. C. Ogan, superintendent at Yuma. The bells tingled sweetly and the "hello" signal that responded in tones as clear as though but a few feet away, closed the long gap, and science again triumphed. To permit the conversation, the sub-station at Maricopa was opened, and with slight adjustments worked satisfactorily. In a few days a new loop will be constructed between Phoenix and Maricopa, which will give the two cities a direct line of communication, such as ordinarily prevails within the local centers.

This line establishes the longest telephone communication in Arizona, and by measurement covers over 500 miles. In a short time the California connection will reach Yuma, when Los Angeles may be called up, distant over 750 miles. Yesterday Tucson was called, and the clearness of the tone of several at that station, was marked. Under construction from that city is the line to El Paso, and before six months pass, that Texas center and Prescott also will be united. Plans are also under way to bring Denver into the long distance circle, and it is believed that in a year hence this city will be connected with all of them. Yesterday's demonstration, however, was especially interesting for it cemented ties of friendship that existed in pioneer days and brought two historical centers into a union.

Thayer says that he found those identified with this great land and water storage enterprise optimistic over the closing of preliminary matters incidental to beginning active construction and declares there is no doubt but what the great project will assume definite consideration in a short time. The title to the large acreage will pass through the customary channels in the land office at Washington, it is believed, this month. If not, the company expects final action in any event early in July. Pending this, incidental work under way will be carried out as formerly outlined. Mr. Thayer states that many of the most influential people of that and other states are interested in the enterprise.

President Campbell anticipates hearty co-operation in his important work, and says that material and very important matters affecting the tax-paying element in every county in Arizona are to be taken up and considered.
